Buffalo Before Breakfast

For your second summer reading book, you will need to read, Buffalo Before Breakfast by Mary Pope Osborne. Please read this book last, so the story will be fresh in your mind when you return to school in August. You will need to keep a journal while reading this book. The journal can be kept in a notebook or you can make one yourself out of looseleaf stapled together.

In your journal you will need to have some notes written for each chapter. These notes should include important facts about what happened in that chapter. You do not need to write these notes in complete sentences. You will also need to write one interesting vocabulary word from each chapter and look up the definition in a dictionary. Here is an example of one journal entry:

Prologue

The tree house is magical – it could take them to the places in their books.

The tree house belongs to Morgan le Fay.

Mysterious – something unexplained and secret

These notes will be used for an assignment you will do in school when you return in August. We hope you enjoy the book!
